President Arthur and the Chinese Ministers Exchange Taffy.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The new Chinese minister was presented to the president by the secretary of state at 6 o'clock this evening. This somewhat unusual hour was selected to enable the retiring ministers to present their letter of recall before quitting Washington by train for San Francisco. The retiring ministers first had an audience with the president, to whom they addressed the following speech:

Mr. President:—Our august sovereign, his majesty the emperor of China, having recalled us to Pekin and our successor being present, we now have the honor to deliver to you a copy of the imperial edict announcing us to China. We beg to assure you that our mission at Washington has been most agreeable, and that we feel grateful for the uniform courtesy and kindness which we have received from yourself and your predecessor and members of the government of the United States; and now in taking our leave we desire to express our sincere wishes for your health and happiness and for the prosperity of the illustrious nation over which you preside.

The president replied:

Messrs. Ministers:—I learned with sincere regret that your official connection with this government was to be severed. Your personal intercourse with all its departments and officers has been uniformly courteous and pleasant. I thank you for the expression of your good will both for me personally and for the United States, and beg to assure you that these kind feelings are entirely reciprocated. We all wish for your safe and pleasant transit to your country and a happy welcome there from a prosperous people.

Meningter, the new minister, delivered the following address:

Mr. President:—I have the honor to deliver to you a letter which the emperor, my august sovereign, has addressed to you, accrediting me as his envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States. It gives me great pleasure to accept the charge laid upon me, and it will be my constant aim to maintain and strengthen the amicable relations which now happily exist between China and the United States. I beg leave to express my earnest wishes for your personal happiness, for the success of your administration and the welfare of the great people over whom you preside; and to add that these are the sentiments of my august sovereign and his government. I beg leave to offer you assurance of my most profound respect and esteem.

To this the president replied: Mr. Minister, it gives me pleasure to receive from your hands his majesty's letter of credence, and the friendly assurances with which you enter on your mission. It will be my constant aim to meet these advances in the same spirit and to spare no effort to strengthen the friendly relations so justly referred to by you. I thank you for your kind expressions to me and the people of the United States. I assure you, Mr. Minister, that I and they will endeavor always to make your residence here happy for yourself as well as useful to the two nations. I beg you to convey to his majesty, the emperor, my thanks for the kind sentiments which he has expressed through you, and the earnest wishes of myself and the people of the United States for his own happiness and for the prosperity of his great empire and the welfare of his people. Accept, Mr. Minister, an expression of gratification that his majesty has selected you to represent him and his government at this post. Your distinction and well known character are the best assurance of a continuance of the friendly relations which have been maintained in the past between the representatives of his majesty at Washington and the government with great advantage to both countries.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

Gould President of the Wabash.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Jay Gould will assume the presidency of the Wabash January 5th. Humphreys said last evening that he had resigned believing the interests of the property would be promoted by the assumption of its executive department by Gould. He should continue, however, to be a director and a member of the executive committee, and there was no truth in the reports of a disagreement between Gould and himself. Humphreys said no action was taken with reference to the company's general mortgage bonds. It appears, however, that a syndicate has been formed to take a large amount of the general mortgage bonds at very near the present market price, thereby furnishing funds which will be used in paying off the loans which have lately become so troublesome. Money was borrowed on collateral afforded by general mortgage bonds issued in connection with the purchase of branch lines. The arrangement just made practically effects the sale of a large block of bonds at good prices.

Gen. Delion, of the C. C. C. & I. Co., had a long conference with Gould at the Wabash meeting.

Railroads in the Southwest.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 31.—The increase and extension of railways the past year lying west and southwest of this city, and having St. Louis for their eastern and northern terminus and outlet, has been simply wonderful, and is resulting in the opening up and very rapid development of a great empire, a large portion of which has been heretofore without railroad facilities. From a long article on railroad progress published in the Post-Dispatch this afternoon the following condensed statement is made: The Iron Mountain system, embracing the Iron Mountain, the International and the Great Northern and Texas and Pacific, added 872 miles of new road during this year. There are two short branches of the Iron Mountain of 49 miles, an extension of the Texas Pacific from Baird to Sierra Blanca, 370 miles; Whitesboro to Fort Worth, 71 miles, the completion of the road from Shreveport, La., to New Orleans, 224 miles, and the extension of the International and Great Northern from New Braunfels to Laredo on the Rio Grande, 84 miles. All these lines run through a rich cotton, sugar or timber country, and are developing it very fast. In addition a line has been surveyed from Knabel, Ark., on the Iron Mountain road to Alexandria, La., which will be vigorously pushed next year, and when completed will form an important link in a short route from St. Louis to New Orleans on the west side of the Mississippi river.

Freight Rates.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Eastern freight rates are said to be 6½ cents over some lines lower than before the war.

A South American Railroad.

One of the morning papers says a railroad from Texas to Brazil through Mexico and Central America and by the Isthmus of Panama to Rio Janeiro, has been projected. It is said that Jno. W. Mackay, the great bonanza king, is to be the president, and that he has promised to devote his best energies and a large part of his capital to its completion. The project referred to was originated several years ago by Mayor Jno. A. Lynch, now a resident of Washington. It then received favorable consideration of Senator David Davis, who gave tangible shape to the suggestion by introducing in the senate a joint resolution that proposed the holding at Washington of a convention in which all the republics of Central and South America should be invited to participate for the purpose of discussing this subject and of taking action by which a substantial and harmonious co-operation could be had in carrying out such international railway communication. Senator Davis' measure met the fate of many others which were referred to the commerce committee, as then constituted, and died of neglect. There is now considerable talk of reviving the scheme, and although the rumor of Mackay's interest in it has not yet been verified, it is conceded that his active support will go a long way toward insuring success.

Another Big Railroad Scheme.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1.—A Republican Dallas special says: Articles of incorporation have been prepared and charters will be secured within the next two weeks for another gigantic railroad enterprise in Texas, to be known as the Gulf and Pacific road, to run from New Orleans via Dallas to Isleta, near Albuquerque, New Mexico, and form a junction with the Atlantic and Pacific. It will run from New Orleans to Sabine river, via Opelousas, a distance of 220 miles, then to Dallas over the Texas trunk, absorbing that road a distance of 250 miles, thence northwesterly to the boundary of the state, in Bay'ey county, a distance of 400 miles, thence via Fort Sumner to Saleta in the valley of the Rio Grande. The entire length of the road will be 1130 miles. The road will be in three separate divisions, the Louisiana, the Texas and the New Mexico. There will be three separate boards of directors. It is proposed to capitalize at a rate of $16,000 per mile, making the stock $10,950,000, and bonds at the same rate will be issued. The road will be operated by three different companies incorporated under the laws of Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico, and will be built by a construction company formed under the laws of New Jersey. The road is backed by some of the strongest bankers and capitalists of New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington as well as Europe. The Atlantic and Pacific will be very much interested in the western road.

The old Spanish mines east of Albuquerque, recently reopened after abandonment of many years, are found to be incredibly rich and their owners will take a large amount of stock in the road. The Dallas & Western road, recently organized to run through the coal fields, will be abandoned, and the Gulf & Pacific take its place. Gen. D. E. Sickles, identified with Paris capitalists; Jas. G. Blaine, ex-Speaker Randall and his brother Robert; the Seligmans of New York, the Nickersons of Boston and others of national reputation are interested in the project.

MEXICO.

Indians Captured.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Accounts from the Presidio del Norte, Mexico, of the capture by Mexicans of forty Apaches on the war path, make it positive that the captured Indians were Nana, the well known war chief, and the remnant of his followers. The Indians came into a village opposite Presidio and attempted to make a treaty of peace, but the inhabitants took them prisoners, shot Nana and other chiefs, and sent the remainder south, intending to place them at work in mines and make the squaws slaves in families at the City of Mexico.

FOREIGN NEWS.

England Thoroughly in Earnest on the Irish Troubles.

THE GOVERNMENT TIRED OF PAST INDECISION.

A More Vigorous Administration of Affairs to be Commenced—Art and Amusement Notes from London.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

NEW YORK, January 1.—The Tribune has the following from London: The Irish executive appears at last to awake to the necessity of coming to close quarters with Irish ruffianism. The organization of eleven of the worst counties into five districts, each under the supervision of a special magistrate, though a step in advance is probably only preliminary to still more direct and efficient action, for which fresh parliamentary powers are deemed necessary. These magistrates are really inspectors, with instructions to institute personal examinations in each district, and with power to use the police and military in urgent cases, but they are charged especially to advise the central executive on the best means of restoring order. This is really an attempt to cut red tape. So is the privy council's sanction to serving writs by post or placard. The authorities believe that the arrest of Connell has disorganized the most dangerous of the ribbon societies. Mr. Forster's resolve to prohibit the circulation of seditious newspapers, whether Irish or foreign, comes, as usual, late, but has the hearty approval of the loyal public.

The duke of Argyle publishes a letter flatly contradicting Mr. Chamberlain's recent assertion that the avowed objects of the land league were originally legal and were approved by the government. The duke declares that the government during 1880, when he was a member, proclaimed the objects of the land league to be unlawful and unjust, and founded a state prosecution on their illegality. This is the second contradiction which Mr. Chamberlain has incurred in his effort to conciliate his radical supporters.

The Mansion House subscription makes little headway in spite of the lord mayor's efforts to galvanize it by continuous letter writing. The liberals and the general public refuse to support a movement tainted, whether justly or unjustly, by the suspicion of party object.

There is an increasing copiousness of just severity in the English criticisms on the Guiteau trial. This is due wholly to the elongated narratives telegraphed to the Times by Joel Cook, its Philadelphia correspondent, who is pursuing his usual plan of telegraphing most fully to England whatever is most discreditable and exceptional in his own country. Englishmen now point out that Justice Cox's excuses for not interfering with Guiteau's constitutional rights do not cover what they think are among the most scandalous incidents of the trial, such as allowing Guiteau to have newspapers, to write and receive letters and to issue addresses.

The Spectator observes that Justice Cox's idea of constitutional rights includes the right to discredit the administration of law by weeks of brutal buffoonery.

The Times itself remarks that the impression made by Garfield's dying scenes, of which the pathos and dignity fixed the attention of the civilized world is weakened by the protracted wrangle into which the trial has been allowed to degenerate. American acknowledgments for this humiliation may be divided between Cox and Cook.

Amusements.

The Christmas pantomimes at Drury Lane and Covent Garden are gorgeously mounted, dull in plot and dialogue, and stamped with vulgarity throughout.

The new burlesque at the Gaiety is like the other Gaiety burlesques, a medium for bad puns, showy dressing and Miss Vaughn's dancing, with the usual part for other favorites of the Gaiety's public.

The only dramatic novelty this week is "Penrose," a new comedy.

"The Squire" at Alfame's theater, which won a decided success, say the critics, though fairly in construction of third act, was weak. Mrs. Kendall saved the act by playing with notable sincerity and power.

Mrs. Langtry's first appearance as a regular member of the Haymarket company is fixed for January 19, when she will play Blanche Haye in Robertson's comedy of "Ours."

Mr. Bancroft announces that he is preparing an English adaptation of M. Sardou's "Odettee." Modjeska is engaged for the leading role.

Carl Rosa's English opera company includes Miss Gaylord, Madame Valleria, Herr Anton Schoff and Albert Randegger as conductor. They began at Her Majesty's Theatre on January 1, with "Lohengrin." The company is organized throughout on a scale rivaling the Italian opera. A season of fifty performances is contemplated.

I hear that Mr. Gye, the manager of the Covent Garden Theater is making important engagements for America next year.

Irving's appearance as Digby Grant in the "Two Roses," is the most decisive and undisputed artistic success of his whole career. Critics who never conceded him great tragic powers applaud the ripeness, strength and refinement of his impersonation. Abbey's play, once extraordinarily popular at the Vaudeville, has grown rusty and was but moderately liked at the Lyceum. The general cast was weak, but the audience, which included a larger proportion of the general public than usual on a first night greeted Mr. Irving with enthusiasm.

Artistic Notes.

There was a private view yesterday of the Grosvenor Galleries winter exhibition, consisting partly of water colors by various artists, but mainly of paintings by G. F. Watts, comprising over two hundred works in various styles; the subjects representing fully and nobly forty years of the artist's life. The imaginative pictures are numerous, but more admirable are Watts' portraits, which are treated with the refinement and poetic insight peculiar to him. They include those of Tennyson, Browning, Swinburne, Gladstone, the Duke of Argyle, Robert Lowe, John Stuart Mill, Miss Martineau, Leslie Stephen, Lords Lundhurst and Shaftesbury, Joachim and Carlyle. There was a private royal academy exhibition also, to-day, of old masters.

Untrammeled Manufactures and Prosperity.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—The Times, in a financial article commenting on the general aspect of trade during the year just ended, notes a steady improvement. Railway traffic returns show an increase of from 3 to 4 per cent. in the latter half year. The enormous production of iron of last year has been exceeded in '81. On Clyde one hundred thousand more tons of shipping has been built than in the most active previous years. The probable out-turn of ships this year may be 800,000 to one million tons gross. The prosperity of other branches of trade is shown by increase up to the end of November in the aggregate value of exports, British produce and manufactories by from 3 to 4 per cent.

Don't be too Certain of That.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—The Daily News, in a leading article discussing the Panama canal enterprise, says it may be hoped that the protectorate in which Europe could not acquiesce will be no more heard of. Blainism is probably destined to become in America like jingoism here and Chauvinism in France, the name of temporary aberration from political reason.

Closed.

The stock exchange will be closed Monday next.

British Outrage.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Two sisters named Croughan have been shot near Mulligan, county West Meath, by an unknown assassin who entered their mother's farm house early in the morning, and after greeting them, drew a revolver and fired, killing one sister and fatally wounding the other.

A Preconcerted Riot.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—A Vienna dispatch says the outrages in Warsaw Sunday last were prearranged. The alarm of fire was raised simultaneously in four churches. A majority of persons arrested have been released.

Bennett wants to Try Again.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Jas. Gordon Bennett started for St. Petersburg to confer with the Russian government as to the feasibility of starting another Polar expedition.

Appointed Governor.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Sir Henry Ernest Bulwer, governor and commander-in-chief of the Windward islands, is appointed governor of Natal.

The Treaty Commission.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—The French commissioners appointed to continue negotiations for a commercial treaty between England and France include Gambetta and Spuller, the under foreign secretary.

Aid Wanted.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—Vera Sassulitch and Pierre Lavroff have written the editor of the Justice asking assistance for distressed nihilists. The editor announces he will receive contributions.

Failure.

The heavy failure in Bordeaux reported is that of J. J. Pigeatt, banker.

Frauds in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 1.—The Novoti will to-morrow announce the insolvency of the grand society of railways and the misappropriation of 25,000,000 roubles of government money on the Nicolas line. An imperial commission of inquiry will be appointed. A proposal is made by the state comptroller to take up railway from the society.

Work of the Defense Association.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The Earl of Courtown has sent the lord mayor a statement showing that since the formation of the property defense association, 337 writs have been served, 630 sheriffs' sales of farms, and 79 sales of cattle have been attended.

ARIZONA.

Arizona's Progress.

TUCSON, Dec. 31. The Star will publish to-morrow morning a review of the progress of the territory during the year 1881, from which the following points are condensed: The S. P. R. R. have extended the line during the year 127 miles, besides cutting through almost impassable barriers near El Paso and building the Rio Grande bridge, and repairing sixty miles of track caused by the washouts. They have built four large hotels, one each at Yuma, Tucson, Bowie and Deming, at a total cost of $97,000, built depots at San Simon, Bowie and El Paso, machine shops, round houses and machine shops at the latter place; greatly enlarged their room at Tucson, and other buildings. The company pay out about $100,000 in wages per year. On the Arizona division the tonnage and passenger travel has greatly increased over last year. The total population of the territory is estimated at not less than 65,000. The amount of stock is over 300,000, of which 26,300 are cattle and 54,000 sheep, which averaged two and a half pounds of wool per head. The grain product of six counties out of nine in the territory, to wit: Pima, Maricopa, Pinal, Cochise, Graham and Yuma, was over 42,435,735 pounds, besides a large amount of vegetables were raised. Maricopa cut 4500 tons of hay and made 5400 gallons of syrup from sorghum. There were about 600 tons of hay cut in Pima and Cochise counties. The assessment of real and personal property of five counties for the year is $10,500,000. The bullion output of the territory as far as heard from during the year is as follows: Tombstone, $5,149,129 54; Harshaw, bullion, $77,500.

Mining Notes.

TOMBSTONE, Dec. 31.—The Bullion output from the discovery of Tombstone to date is as follows: Tombstone M. & M. Co. $1,704,631; Contention Western, $2,708,144.39; Central, $2,350,675.39 Head Centre, $191,520.52; Vizana, $529,716.9; Corbin M. H, $40,000; Ingersoll, $5,600; Sunset, $15,000; Boston $70,011.12. Total, $7,361,209.83. Dividends—Tombstone M. M. & Co., $1,100,000; Contention, $1,275,000; Grand Central, $600,000; Vizana, $80,000. Total, $3,155,000. Twenty-one mule teams are constantly engaged in hauling ore to the mills, and Nadeau has ten more doing general freighting.

Ore shipped from the district, $46,000; Yuma and Mohave, silver, $103,000, gold, $64,000; Silver King, $1,860,000; shipments from Globe district, by Casa Grande, $726,000; Tip Top, $298,512 32; Bowie, $27,802 81; other points in Pima county, gold dust, $40,159; silver bullion, $61,616. Of the last sum, $14,000 is supposed to have come from Sonora. The Vulture mill, running 80 stamps, hasn't been heard from. The total out-put, so far as heard from, is $9,085,079 66; the total out-put of the Horshaw Co. since its commencement is $1,165,104 49; total from Tip Top, $1,319,952 62. The copper out-put was as follows: Copper Queen, 4,965,735 pounds; Clifton, 2,734,610 pounds; Huachuca Co., 240,000 pounds; Carrio of Globe, 82,000; Neptune, 65,000; total, 8,098,495. The average pureness of the bullion is 96½ per cent. The total copper bullion out-put of 1881 did not exceed 2,700,000 pounds, giving a surplus of 5,398,795 pounds, with as large amount as of high grade silver ore shipped of which no account was taken, or the Silver King concentrations, which will run up in many thousands. The Star predicts that the silver and gold bullion output for 1882 will reach $25,000,000, and the copper output over 40,000,000 pounds, as that industry is yet in its infancy. The Copper Queen alone proposes to add another furnace in six weeks, and promises an output of 1,250,000 pounds per month. Several other companies in Bisbee district will be in operation soon, three in Santa Ritas, two additional in Silver Bill, four in the Santa Catalina mountains, and several south of the Gila. All have vast quantities of copper ore in sight. Their success is assured. As the old year goes out Arizona's prosperity is booming in every industry, and we promise California silver, gold and copper bullion for her grain, fruit and manufactured goods.

NEVADA.

Comstock Notes.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., Jan. 1.—It is reported here this evening that there is a marked improvement in the north drift from the joint Mexican and Union consolidated winze, on the 2700 foot level. The south drift from the main Sierra Nevada and Union drift shows no change of value as yet. They are preparing to sink a winze in crosscut No. 3 of the Sierra Nevada 2500 foot level. Ophir ships $16,541 in bullion this evening. Yellow Jacket is finding good stringers of quartz on both the 2823 and 3000 foot levels. Savage is running a fourth drill hole at the top of the incline. There is no truth in the statement that Hegent has, or is about to shut down.

Reward Offered.

Acting Governor J. W. Adams has offered a reward of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the Pollock murderers. Inquest commenced last night, and adjourned till Monday evening, when it is hoped an important witness will be secured.

CALIFORNIA.

A Double Crime.

NEVADA CITY, Jan. 1.—Johnny Williams, who shot an Indian near this city a few days ago, and was arrested at Sacramento by Sheriff Tompkins, was tried in the justice court yesterday for furnishing liquor to Indians. He plead guilty and was sentenced this morning to sixty days in the county jail. At the end of that time he will be tried on a charge of murder.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Olympia Notes.

OLYMPIA, Jan. 1.—The Sunday law went into effect here to-day, business houses and liquor saloons being closed since 12 o'clock last night. One saloon has remained partially open, which has caused some unpleasant feelings amongst the others. The probability is that only a reference to the law courts will settle the question as to constitutionality.

Weather mild and thermometer fifty.

WASHINGTON CITY.

A Bankrupt Law to be Framed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The exact nature of the conclusion reached last summer to take into consideration the propriety of enacting a national bankruptcy law has not yet been disclosed, but it is known that they have framed a bill which will be brought before the full judiciary committee at an early day, with strong recommendations for adoption. From conversations with a large number of congressmen it appears that there is a decided preponderance of sentiment in favor of the enactment by this congress of some bankruptcy law. A senator who has given the subject a great deal of thought and examination expresses the belief that within the coming year a majority of both houses will agree upon a measure free from the cumbersome and expensive features of the former law, which will give assurance alike of justice and permanence in the regulation of bankruptcy proceedings throughout the whole country. He says the last national bankrupt act was the reverse of what he believes the new one will be. For while under the old law it was comparatively easy to obtain a discharge from debt, even with fraudulent intentions, the new law will protect the creditors' class rather than unduly the debtors.

A Donation from Egypt.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The committee of "Garfield Memorial Hospital" have received $400 from the khedive of Egypt through Consul General Wolf, who writes that he expects to supplement this with further subscription to the amount of $1000. Minister Morton of Paris, the American exchange of London, and American consuls at Amsterdam and elsewhere are also receiving subscriptions for this object.

New Year's Day at the White House.

The president's reception will be after the usual form.

Another Reception.

The Russian minister called upon the president to take leave before starting for Russia.

Following named ladies have been invited by President Arthur and will assist him at the New Year's reception at the White House, Monday: Mrs. Logan, Cameron, Pendleton, Jones, James, Miller, Pierson and Robeson.

Liquor Laws in Massachusetts.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, reviewing the results of the recent municipal elections in that state, says that of 96,000 voters who voted on the question of license or no license, 54,000 voted for license and 42,000 for prohibition. In Boston, the vote stood 27,127 to 12,395, and in the other nineteen cities the division of opinion was very even, the totals standing 31,687 for license to 29,661 for prohibition. The Republican says of the results in smaller cities:

Eight cities were carried for prohibition—Somerville, Newton, Brockton, Haverhill, Gloucester, Fitchburg, Lynn, and Newburyport. Of these, Somerville and Newton belong to the class of residence cities, with very little manufacturing population; they ought not only to vote prohibition, but be able to carry it into effect. Brockton, Haverhill, Fitchburg and Newburyport are of the class of smaller cities which will vote prohibition, but tolerate a good deal of liquor selling. Lynn voted for prohibition in disgust at the liberties enjoyed by the liquor interest in that city under the present law. There has not been the slightest restraint placed upon the liquor traffic in that city by the feeble government which has been raised to place by the so-called [illegible]. The present vote against license in Lynn is consequently a reaction, and we shall be curious to see whether a city which has not enforced license will enforce prohibition. Salem, which voted for prohibition last year, and had trouble, now votes for license.

A QUARREL OVER THE SPOILS.

How the Greed of Protectionists Leads them to Fall Out with Each Other.

[Chicago Times.]

"Tis the sport to have the engineer hoist with his own petard." When that variety of sport is not available, an excellent substitute for it is to have the protectionist complain about the tariff. The most unblushing beggars for government help in carrying on their business are the makers of steel rails. Having procured a tariff to protect themselves from foreign competition, they have organized a pool to protect themselves from competition with each other, and after resisting all efforts to get the tariff on their wares reduced, on the ground that home industries must be protected and home goods bought to the exclusion of foreign goods, they proceed to buy foreign steel blooms to roll out into rails, because they can get the foreign blooms cheaper than the domestic ones. That which is a jewel of consistency in a swine's snout is not to be looked for in the case of a protected manufacturer. He insists in getting his labor where he can get it the cheapest, even if he has to import it directly from Europe under a contract to work for less than the ruling rate of wages here; he gets the materials he uses where he can get them for the least money, without the slightest regard to the place where they were made, and totally insensible to the arguments based on the rights of American labor and capital which he always uses in his own behalf. A manufacturer of steel rails, who demands a tariff on his line of goods to encourage home industry, and who buys steel blooms of English and German makers because they sell at lower prices than the American makers do, is a pleasing spectacle for contemplation.

There is trouble among the steel men; it is the trouble that highwaymen sometimes have in the division of the spoils. The rail-makers want all the benefit themselves; the makers of the steel out of which the rails are made want their share of the plunder extracted from the public. Some rail-makers are in a state of neutrality because their interests as rail-makers and as bloom-makers offset each other; but there are some who are chiefly interested in making the rails, and the cheaper they can get their blooms the more money can they put into their pockets; others are in exactly the opposite position; they are interested chiefly in making the blooms, and the more they can get for their blooms, the more wealth they can accumulate. One set wants a high and the other a low duty on blooms. It happens that the duty on blooms is 45 per cent ad valorem, while that on billets is 2½ cents a pound, or about 200 per cent. The difference between a bloom and a billet is not easy to define, consequently lumps of steel are sometimes taxed as blooms, which the bloom-makers want taxed as billets, while they are sometimes taxed as billets, though the rail-makers want them taxed as blooms. The men who have been rending the air with their denunciations of the treasury department for making rulings that admitted the class of goods they make at a low instead of a high rate of duty, now insist that the department shall make a ruling that will admit lumps of steel at a duty of 45 instead of at a duty of 200 per cent. Their interest in American labor and American capital, and their profound conviction of the necessity of keeping the products of the pauper labor of Europe out of the United States, disappear like the mists of the morning when their own interest are affected. They denounce the lack of patriotism of the free traders, who defend the right to buy cheap and to sell dear, and then they become as eager as the men whom they accuse of being bribed with British gold, to do precisely the same thing—to buy foreign steel blooms and get them into the country at a low duty, and from them make steel rails, which Americans must buy at their prices or go without. That is all the patriotism and all the economic philosophy that underlies the protective system. The manufacturers who demand protection want to make all the money they can; their pretense that they are benevolent persons who desire to promote American industry is a transparent piece of hypocrisy.

The controversy between the two classes of protectionists, the makers of rails and the makers of blooms, brings out conspicuously the fact, always plain enough, but denied in all protectionist platforms, that the tariff does raise prices, and is therefore a tax. The resolutions of the Chicago tariff convention to the contrary notwithstanding. If the duty on blooms or billets does not raise the price of them, why do the rail-makers, who buy foreign blooms, prefer a duty of 45 to one of 200 per cent, and why do the makers of steel want a duty of 200 instead of one of 45 per cent? But who pays the tax ultimately? If the manufacturers of steel articles have to import their material as billets instead of as blooms, do they stand the loss, or do they make their selling prices high enough to recoup themselves? Obviously they do not do the former. The duty, then, is a tax which the consumer has to pay.

The controversy also shows very clearly that one man cannot be protected without injuring some other man. To let the lumps of steel in at a low rate injures the makers of steel blooms and billets; to exact on it the high rate is to injure the man who works the steel up into articles for sale. Both of them cannot be taken care of by the tariff, except at the expense of the consumer. The duty that helps one trade is a blow at the prosperity of another, and the government has no right to make discriminations, helping one class and increasing the burdens of others. Were the duty on pig iron taken off, perhaps the steel-makers could get along with little or no duty on blooms and billets that they make, but then, what would the makers of pig iron do? Justice is impossible under any tariff, because the system is itself unjust; the principle that it rests on are those of robbery, the taking from one man of his substance for the benefit of another. The only way that the protective system can be maintained is by an agreement of several classes of manufacturers to make common cause against the people at large. The system is illogical, so soon as the latter come to understand, as they are slow in coming to understand, that every duty enters into prices, and they have to pay them ultimately, and that in proportion as a tariff is a revenue tariff it cannot be protective, because the revenue is collected from the goods that are imported, while the purpose of the tariff, in so far as it is protective, is to prevent importation.

FREE TRADE IN SHIPS.

Senator Beck of Kentucky, has introduced the following bill, designed to authorize the purchase of foreign built ships by citizens of the United States for use in the foreign trade:

Be it enacted, etc. That so many of the various provisions of title forty-eight of the Revised Statutes of the United States, entitled "Regulation of Commerce and Navigation," embraced in chapters one to nine of said title, and from section 4131 to section 4305, both inclusive, as either prohibit or restrict citizens of the United States from purchasing ships built in other countries to be used in the foreign carrying trade of the United States, or which impose taxes, burdens, or restrictions on such ships when owned by American citizens which are not imposed on ships built in the United States, are hereby repealed; and it shall be lawful hereafter for all citizens of the United States to buy ships built, in whole or in part, in any foreign country, and have them registered as ships of the United States and when so registered such ships so bought shall be entitled to all the rights and subject only to the same regulations as are now provided by law for the government and management of ships built wholly within the United States and owned and controlled by citizens thereof.

Saturday's Proceedings in the Guiteau Trial—The Same Old Song.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—At the opening of the court Guiteau called out, "One of my guards here, Cunningham, has got an eleven-pound baby for a New Year's present." [Laughter, in which the jury heartily joined.]

Dr. Gray resumed the story of his conversation with the prisoner in jail.

Guiteau interrupted, "That don't correspond with your evidence yesterday, doctor. You went into inspiration then."

Scoville objected to the statement of witness, saying, "He said nothing of inspiration or divine pressure" and urged that witness must give the conversation or the substance of it. It has occurred that it would be the province of the jury to say what should be inferred from it.

Witness qualified his statement by adding, "I asked him questions and my statement was based upon his replies." Witness continuing, said, "the prisoner used the expression, 'When I made up my mind.'"

Guiteau shouted, "making up my mind was the result of a grinding pressure. That's where the inspiration came in. Please get that straight while you are about it."

Witness was about to state some reasons which induced him (witness) to form the opinion that prisoner was sane at the time he visited him at the jail, when Guiteau again interrupted and called out, "Dr. Gray is devoting himself to an argument to the jury this morning which he has no right to do. He should confine himself to facts. Porter will take care of the argument, [sarcastically] Judge Porter I mean."

Scoville again objected that witness was volunteering an argument, instead of adhering to a statement of facts.

Witness, with some feeling, replied, "I am under oath, Mr. Scoville and I don't care to volunteer anything which is not strictly appropriately evidence in the case."

Scoville again objected that witness was losing sight of the question and going into argument.

Guiteau—"He's forgot all what he testified yesterday. Corkhill must have got hold of him and instructed him what to say to-day, that's what's the matter with him."

Scoville disclaimed any desire to interrupt the witness, but the prosecution held him to the strict requirement that he should make his objections specifically, and he must therefore stop witness at every point where he was satisfied an objection would be.

Guiteau continually interjected comments and with Scoville's frequent objections, witness soon became seriously disturbed and when asked to go on said, "There have been so many interruptions I don't know where I am."

Witness then stated at length what ingenious acts in court led him to believe that Guiteau was sane. When asked if he thought Guiteau had been feigning, he replied, "Yes, I do; he claims inspiration from the deity, I don't believe he believes such a thing, and in such a sense he is feigning."

Guiteau—No such thing. I never feign. You are paid for your opinion. The jury is not. You may reach Abraham in twenty years, doctor; you are a growing man.

Witness said he abandoned the moral insanity theory as long ago as 1854.

Guiteau—The amount of it is that these experts will swear to anything for money. The subject of insanity is progressive.

Witness said that he was unwilling to come, but the president of their board thought he should, and a telegram summoned him.

"How about Corkhill's money? I guess that was the influence that brought you here. This fellow Corkhill has got a bunghole in the treasury that will run out $100,000 before he gets through with this case," interrupted Guiteau. "It's about time President Arthur was attending to his case. I wouldn't let him stay here a week if I was president. However, I'll attend to Corkhill in '84."

Scoville attempted to get witness to confess the conversations and conduct were the chief means of determining sanity or insanity. Witness held that it was only an incident, not an essential element.

Guiteau interposed that experts on this case wanted to kill a man and examine his brain to determine on his sanity afterwards.

Witness had seen some forty cases of feigned insanity. Witness was feigning insanity.

The afternoon passed wearily. Council for prosecution devoted themselves mainly to preparation and arrangement of points for forthcoming arguments. Finally the hour of adjournment having arrived, Guiteau, who had been listlessly following the proceedings, called out, "To-morrow will be New Years, 1882. I shall receive to-morrow in jail, and shall be happy to see all who can succeed in getting in. I wish every one a Happy New Year. Come, Scoville, it's 3 o'clock. Let's go home."

Adjourned till Monday.

CALIFORNIA.

A Sad Tragic Affair.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—At about 8 o'clock this morning Geo. S. Reed, residing at 2049 Mission street, shot and killed his mother-in-law, Sarah J. Smith; wounded, probably fatally, his eight-year-old daughter, Ella, and then killed himself. Reed, who was a widower, aged 31, has been for several years clerk with Macondray & Co. He lived with his mother-in-law and sisters-in-law, Mrs. Sarah O'Gorham and Mrs. Carrie L. Burr. He was of a nervous disposition and probably inherits a streak of insanity, as one of his uncles, also in the employ of Macondray & Co., died in an insane asylum. For some time Reed had been much pressed with business, and latterly was in a very nervous and excitable frame of mind. He continued at work until yesterday, when he took to his bed. His conversation yesterday showed that he apprehended danger of doing some mischief in his hysterical state. This morning Mrs. Gorham went into his room, carried his wishes regarding breakfast, and went down stairs to prepare it. Shortly after she heard shots, and running to the stairs, saw Reed fall at the head of the stairway, while little Ella came running down, crying, "Papa has killed me." She called assistance and went up stairs. Her mother was lying on the floor of the hall near the door of her room, shot in the breast. He was speechless and dead in a few moments. Reed also lay in the hall with one shot in the head and another near the heart. A pistol lay under his right hand. He lived about two hours in an unconscious condition. The child is shot in the breast and will probably die. She says that she ran into the hall to kiss her papa that he had a hole in his forehead; he seized and shot her, then shot himself. Reed's act was evidently committed under the impulse of temporary insanity, as his family relations were of a pleasant nature, and no other cause is known to exist to account for the tragedy.

REAL ESTATE MARKET.

The following special report of the real estate market is furnished THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN by J. Fred. Clark & Co., real estate agents:

The year 1881 closes with a week in which the deeds that have gone to record show a united consideration greater than that exhibited in any week during the year by $49,613 90, the number of transactions being 47. The greatest number of deeds recorded in one week, viz., 66, was in the week ending Dec. 16th, the consideration being $163,768. Under the heading of country and suburban, appears the greatest exhibit of the present week, a fact attributable mainly to the large purchases of the O. R. & N. Co. north of Albina, which have gone to record. The following is a correct analysis of the week's business:

Couch and Northward	9 deeds	$ 25 773 39
Country and Suburban	17 "	124 046 00
City proper	7 "	50,601 00
East Portland	11 "	8,326 44
Caruthers and Southward	3 "	5,675 00
Right of Way	1 "	175 00
Total	48 deeds	$115,396 94

LECTURES.

The incoming steamer brings Mr. S. B. Wiggin of San Francisco, who, with his wife, Miss Kate Smith Wiggin, visit Portland for two weeks, and give lectures under the auspices of the Social Science committee. Mrs. Wiggin has been for some years principal of the Silver St. Kindergarten, where a hundred neglected children are daily collected and cared for. She will give the opening lecture of the Social Science course. Mr. Wiggin brings two lectures on European politics, entitled, "Nihilism" and "Gambetta and Bismarck." With these two lectures accessory to their course, the committee have eight lectures to offer for the season of 1882. Thomas and lecturers will soon be announced in full by programme.

ANOTHER MISHAP.

EQUITABLE
LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,
120 Broadway, New York.

LIFE INSURANCE PROFITS DEMONSTRATED BY ACTUAL SETTLEMENTS MADE IN 1880.

The Society is now paying maturing Tontine Policie with the following remarkable results:

POLICIES CARRIED TEN YEARS WITH THE RETURN OF ALL PREMIUMS PAID AND INTEREST THEREON.

1st Example: Policy No. 43,563, issued May 25, 1870. Amount...$10,000 00
Total premiums paid (11 years)...5,584 60
The assured is now entitled to draw, in cash, $6,455.80, having had besides $10,000 of assurance for eleven years. 115 per cent. of premiums paid, returnable in cash.

This example and those which follow show that LARGER PROFITS ARE PAID POLICY-HOLDERS THAN ARE NOW DECLARED BY ANY OTHER COMPANY.

2d Example: Policy No. 58,543, issued Dec. 30, 1870. Endowment 20 years. Tontine Period ten years. Amount...$10,000 00
Total premiums paid (10 years)...7,539 00
The assured on Dec. 30, 1880, will be entitled to draw in cash, $9,023 10, 120 per cent of the premiums paid.
These results, although predicted by carefully made estimates, are

NOT ESTIMATES, BUT ACTUAL CASH RETURNS.

3d Example: Policy No. 41,621, issued March 27, 1870. Amount...$5,000 00
Total premiums paid...2,908 95
In this case the assured withdrew, March 27, 1880, in cash, $3,212 45, being 114 per cent. of premiums paid.
Many policies will be thus paid in 1881, showing

CASH RETURNS OF FROM 100 TO 120 PER CENT. OF THE PREMIUMS PAID.

Assets securely invested of $45,000,000. Surplus, nearly $10,000,000. The Society's popularity is shown by the fact that for the past eleven years the total amount of new policies issued has been greater than that of any other company in existence, thus making its average

ANNUAL NEW BUSINESS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER COMPANY.

The Society pays death claims promptly and in full. Its policies are clear and concise, and with no unreasonable conditions.

EVERY POLICY BECOMES INCONTESTABLE AFTER THREE YEARS.

BILLIARD TABLES.
8 OF JACOB STRAHLE & CO'S BILLIARD TAbles, provided with Delaney's Steel-Spring Cushions, have been placed in the Palace Hotel, and many more at other places in the city of San Francisco, and by and the so-much blowed-up and self-superior Mohoge Cushions on billiard tables removed. Every week we have to change Mushroom and replace Delaney Cushions instead. We do not warrant them to keep their power 20 years, but long enough to give satisfaction to anybody. The undersigned sells or rents all kinds of tables and sends goods to all parts of the Northwest at San Francisco prices.

OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE.

The failure thus far to make a case against the star route robbers is a further proof of the obstructive effects of the grand jury system. Not a year passes that something similar is not witnessed in nearly every community. Proceedings for enforcement of criminal justice are often blocked at the very threshold. The original intention of the grand jury was to defend the liberty of the individual against the government, but it is a grave question whether, in the United States at least, the tendency is not in the opposite extreme. That is to say, "the peace and dignity of the commonwealth" are both sacrificed through the incompetency, the venality, the ignorance and the prejudice of those composing or controlling the grand jury. Instead of defending the liberty of the good citizen of the state, license is given to the criminal and vicious classes by affording them immunity from punishment. The right arm of justice is paralyzed in the very court of her own temple, and the seeds of lawlessness and destruction are sown by the very hands chosen to enforce the law and strengthen the hands of the government.

The grand jury is a body of almost absolute power. It may obstruct justice by preventing the punishment of actual criminals, or it may drag to trial persons against whom no charge ought be laid. In theory the duty of the grand jury is simply to hear the cases presented to them, and to decide whether there be sufficient evidence to return the accused for trial. The investigation is altogether ex parte, as the defendant is not heard in his own behalf. All that is needed to find a "true bill" is enough evidence to satisfy them that the case is one which ought to go before a traverse jury. On the other hand, if the testimony is not sufficient to sustain the charge, they return it "not a true bill." If all grand juries were composed of the right kind of men, there would be little fault to find with the system; but, unfortunately, they are often made up, for the most part, of indifferent, rather than the best material. Those who ought to serve are seldom called, and when summoned make haste to get excused. On the other hand, many who are wholly unfit, mentally and morally, are selected through questionable motives of various kinds, and not a few manage to have themselves placed in the way of being "drawn" merely for the sake of the fees. When juries are so constituted it sounds like bitter sarcasm to talk about this system as a bulwark of our liberties and to class it among the great principles embodied in magna charta.

As regards certain classes of offenses, reliance on the grand jury is simply a travesty of justice. It arbitrarily rejects the clearest testimony and ignores the plainest requirements of law. It obstructs (as in these star route cases) the enforcement of law at the very inception, by declaring that certain offenders shall not be indicted and tried. The influences brought to bear are sometimes of a corrupt nature, but oftener the result of a disposition to screen the guilty through sympathy, personal or social relationship, or that affection or obligation which springs from the numerous clubs or organizations into which men are divided. There is a large class of citizens who have set up false standards of "personal liberty," and when these are called upon as jurors to enforce the laws which trench upon their assumed rights, they invariably permit themselves to be governed by prejudice, and ignore alike their oath and the law.

It is easier, doubtless, to point out the defects of the system than to suggest a remedy. To abolish the grand jury altogether would be too radical and sweeping, and yet it is scarcely to be doubted that the interests of justice would be better subserved by lodging the power to find bills in the judges, or in some body less cumbersome and more directly responsible to the people. The secrecy of the grand jury room helps to screen the jurors from merited criticism, and ought to be abolished. If they were compelled to hold open hearings, as a court, and all the testimony were placed upon record, there would be very different findings in many cases. If it be objected that the ends of justice would be defeated by open sessions, the answer is that the ends of justice are shamefully and habitually defeated now. The secresy might be maintained for a time, and the proceedings made public subsequently, so that any one interested in a given case could see what the testimony was and how each juror voted. As it is now, the members are sworn to secrecy, and the court itself cannot review their action or set aside their findings.

There is one thing which would largely tend to remedy existing abuses, and which is within the reach of the public without any change in the law. The whole system of selecting jurors should be remodeled so as to prohibit unfit persons from getting into the jury box at all. There can be no change for the better while the present miserably inefficient method of selection is maintained, and the fault, we are free to say, is not so much in the law as in the way in which it is administered.

D. W. S.

HOLDING AND SELLING GRAIN.

One of the most noticeable features in the commercial world in the United States in 1881, was the great speculation in grain. In eastern cities it became a sort of universal gambling in wheat, corn and oats. A larger number of people than ever before indulged in it, from the great dealers who handled or bet on millions of bushels down through all ranks to the hotel waiter who put up his week's wages as a "margin" on the purchase of a single hundred bushels. So great was the rage in Chicago especially, that on some days sales reached ten million bushels and on one day, October 1, the deliveries of grain on previous contracts were reported at 32,000,000 bushels in that city alone. While this "craze" lasted it benefited those who could get their grain to market for the bulls ran up very high, in fact so high as almost to stop exports, but the final result was to demoralize the whole trade. The question how and why such a thing was possible is now being discussed. Month before last the "visible supply" of wheat, that is wheat in the elevators and storehouses and in transit amounted to more than 41,000,000 bushels. Last year at the same time there were only 37,099,745 bushels, showing more available wheat now than one year ago, though prices are full 40 per cent. higher. Nearly the same of corn; the "visible supply" being nearer 27,649,173 bushels; last year 28,289,298 bushels.

A great many men not classed as speculators learned a lesson from the result of the mania which they will not soon forget. High speculative prices diminished consumption, and raised the price of labor, for having to pay more for bread the laborer must have increased wages. These causes greatly diminished exports and called out supplies from other sources, so that the United States will to all present appearances "carry over" into next harvest full as much as was brought over from the crop of 1880. The rapid development of wheat producing lands in this country renders the speculation which tends to keep so large a surplus in the country a matter of great concern. Gambling in wheat is as detrimental to the true interests of the legitimate trade as that in mining stocks is to legitimate mining operations. Many farmers think that the newspapers ought to be able to give advice as to the best time to sell, but were these farmers to inquire even of those who make speculation their business and were these speculators to speak their honest convictions the farmer would be no better off. One-half of those who make a business of studying the prospects, viz., the sellers for future delivery always believe prices will fall, or else they would not so sell. The other of them—the buyers—believe grain will go higher from natural causes or that they can corner the supplies and put up the rates. So that there are always two opinions in regard to the future, among those who are in the business and these opinions directly antagonize each other. The American Agriculturist, always supposed to speak in favor of the producer, lays it down as a general rule that the best time to sell is when the holder is ready, and that holding for a rise in price oftener proves the reason of loss than of gain to the producer. Interest, cost of storage, shrinkage and other losses that invariably accompany a holding for better figures, in a great majority of cases, more than offset the advanced rate when the farmer happens to get it. Oregon farmers are not unlike those of other states. They sometimes go into speculation, and when able to realize a fair price, hold for a better and at last are compelled to take a less. It looks now as if some of them as well as some of the speculators would suffer from this cause the present season.

"Pope Bob," otherwise known as the witty and amusing Ingersoll, according to the Chicago Tribune, has given half an hour of his time to a consideration of the subject of reform in the official habits of the president of the United States. He declares that the White House is a "horrid, cheerless old barrack." He says the government ought to give the president a house which should be his castle, and into which no man should enter unless invited. He wants the president to have a private secretary capable of saying "No" to about ninety-nine out of every hundred callers at the presidential mansion, so that the president's privacy shall not be interrupted by the "American citizen from Gilligan's Mills," who is invariably consumed by a desire to talk over the political situation with the nation's executive, in order that upon his return to Gilligan's Mills he may talk over in the barroom the fact that he talked over the political situation with the "Great Father" at Washington. There should be a better system at White House, exclaims Mr. Ingersoll, so that the president can have "six hours a day for play." He wants the receptions discontinued because "they are an imitation of monarchy," and because they convert "the president into a pump" and give everybody "a chance to take a jerk at the handle." Mr. Ingersoll probably overlooks the fact that now and then the incumbent of the presidential office desires to become a candidate for reelection. The aspirant for a second term can hardly afford to hide himself away from "the dear people." If he wants their suffrages he must smile upon them. If he wants them to run a machine for his benefit, he must furnish oil to grease it, in the shape of offices. He can hardly trust his private secretary to distribute the oil. That official might say "No" to the chief of the machine at Gilligan's Mills! President Arthur has indicated the only way in which the office-hunting madness can be cured—by law. Anything else is mere patch-work.

The financial recovery of France from her disastrous war of 1871 with Germany is marvelous. A recent publication shows that the additional debt which she incurred by the war amounted to 2000 millions of dollars. Besides this colossal sum, vast expenditures were required for the restoration of the army and navy, for fortifying the new frontier, and for rebuilding the wreck which the invading armies had caused. A loan of 400 million dollars was asked for, and 1000 millions were offered. A second loan of 750 million dollars was asked, and 8750 millions were offered. This of itself was astonishing enough, but the manner in which the additional taxes were raised that were required to pay the interest on these loans, and the heavy current expenses is more surprising still. The amount of new taxes necessary was 140 million dollars a year. For four years the financiers of France labored at the problem of providing this prodigious sum. Year after year the government was in arrears, but at length, in 1875, the new tax system was completed, and its merits are seen in the comparative ease with which it has been borne, and the yearly increasing surplus which it has produced. Although the ordinary expenses of the government have increased, the new taxes have been remitted to the extent of $60,000,000. France may well be proud of such an exhibition of her industrial and commercial thrift, and of the financial wisdom of her rulers. The republic, it would seem, is peace, and not peace only, but prosperity.

Exports from the Columbia river for the year 1881 amounted in value to fully $14,000,000. Direct exports to foreign countries, as our tables published yesterday show, reached a value of $6,049,418. Adding exports to San Francisco, consisting of wheat, flour, wool, salmon and other products, the value of which at a moderate estimate would be $6,000,000, we have the total above indicated. Salmon alone shipped to San Francisco reached a total of 222,000 cases, valued at $1,100,000. Wheat shipments hence to that city were about 400,000 centals, valued at $600,000, and flour shipments 320,000 sacks, valued at about $400,000. Of wool, 27,762 bales were shipped, having a value of about $1,400,000. Oats, flaxseed, potatoes, hides, hops, etc., would make up another half million of value. It is therefore a safe estimate that the value of exports from the Columbia river for the year was $14,000,000 in all. This showing is highly creditable to the industry of 250,000 people.

A religious contemporary thinks that those who would be glad to see Guiteau hanged at once, or who wouldn't feel any pangs of regret if his brains were blown out without unseemly delay, are the skeptical or infidel portion who do not believe there is any punishment after death, and who therefore would like to see such punishment as can be inflicted here at once. We take this to be bad reasoning. These people are probably the most orthodox of all classes, and would like to see the terrible punishment of the future state begin upon this assassin without unnecessary loss of time.

The author of the Junius letters has at last been discovered. At Philadelphia the other day, the late Tom Paine delivered a lecture to an audience of spiritualists through a female medium, and after he had finished, was asked if he wrote the letters. He seemed staggered for a minute, but it was evidently to refresh his memory that he paused, and then, as he couldn't tell a lie, he answered with an emphatic "Yes."

One of the brightest of the London weeklies—Truth—tells the whole story of Guiteau and finds the right name for him in two sentences, as follows:

> As for his being mad, this is nonsense. He is a pernicious fool, and if he were acquitted on the ground of insanity the life of no president in America would be safe against the endeavors of pernicious fools like him, seeking to thrust themselves into notoriety.

THE OREGON SHORT LINE.

WHAT IT PROPOSES TO DO IN THIS STATE.

Interview with Hon. A. L. Williams, Attorney for the Company—Will It Form an Alliance with the O. R. & N. Co.?

Last night the correspondent of the California Associated Press in this city, had an interview at the Esmond with Hon. A. L. Williams of Topeka, Kansas, ex-attorney general of that state and attorney for the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line railroads, who arrived here by the State of California on her last trip. Referring to the incorporation of the latter company mentioned in THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN yesterday, he said it was merely a formal action to establish legal status in this state, preparatory to building railroad lines within its borders. When questioned as to the intentions of his company, Mr. Williams said in plain words that they intended to come to Oregon. Just which route was to be followed, he could not tell, as that question had not been decided. One line contemplated is from Boise City nearly northwest to Umatilla, then down the north side of the Columbia to Portland. Another route is from Boise city down the Boise river to the Snake; then northwest, crossing the Malheur, via Willow Creek and John Day's river, past Canyon City; then nearly west, through the Santiam pass to the Willamette valley thence to Portland.

"The Northern Pacific intends to build down the north bank of the Columbia," hinted the questioner.

"I know it," answered Mr. Williams, "but that will not prevent us from occupying the field with them. We have met like difficulties several times, in fact, they are so common, that they are not regarded as obstacles. Congress will not prevent the occupancy of this portion of the public domain by the Short Line road."

"It is generally understood here," suggested the correspondent, "that the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company will build to Baker City, Oregon, and that the Short Line will come from Granger to Boise by the end of this year, the remaining one hundred and twenty miles between the two termini to be built and operated by one or the other road, as may be mutually agreed upon, and earnings divided pro rata."

"Yes, that is the understanding," said Mr. Williams, "but Mr. Villard has a charter to build, through Idaho and Wyoming, and the Short Line must be ready to return the compliment by coming to Oregon, hence this preparation. Promises between railroad managers have often been broken, and it is barely possible that this agreement may be nullified."

Mr. Williams declined to speak positively as to the action of the Short Line road in case a favorable alliance is made with the O. R. & N. Co., but gave his questioner to infer that in the event of an alliance the Wyoming road would build no farther than is necessary to make connection with the Oregon company.

The local board, Messrs. D. P. Thompson, M. S. Burrell and Ellis G. Hughes and B. J. Pengra, of Lane county, are nominal directors. The incorporation laws of Oregon require that a majority of directors be residents of the state. Whatever may be the future of the Short Line in Oregon, its headquarters will be in this city, and if it does not join Mr. Villard's enterprises, will make Portland its western terminus.

Mr. Williams leaves this morning for a visit to Puget Sound, and will return to San Francisco by the Columbia, sailing Thursday night.

AMUSEMENTS.

"A better comedy and better played than any during John Owens' engagement," was the verdict of the large audience who saw "Our Boarding House" at New Market, Saturday night. We concur. Mr. Simms and Mr. Thompson for the first time since the Sheridan season, had the opportunity of doing themselves justice. The former as "Gilliford" and the latter as "Col. M. F. Elevator" kept the house in roars during the time they occupied the stage. A neat compliment was paid to Mr. Sheridan's ability by an old play goer who, speaking of the tragedian's impersonation of "Fioretti," said that he could not put Guiteau out of his mind while he was looking at the Italian scoundrel.

"Our Boarding House" will be repeated to-morrow night.

It seems like something of an innovation upon old customs to be enabled to go into a place of business and find all the leading sewing machines on sale, yet this is the case at Garrison's sewing machine Store, 167, Third street. Mr. Garrison, instead of taking up one machine and praising up its merits at the expense of all others, believes there are merits in any of the leading ones, and wishing his many customers to choose for themselves. He has placed on sale the Wilson, Howe, Royal St. John, Davis, Improved Singer, Crown, New Home, D Howe Manufacturing and Household, all instruments of repute and standing. A first-class adjuster is in the work-room who allows nothing to leave the store without being arranged to a nicety. His facilities for repairing all makes are not to be excelled. Courteous lady operators are in waiting, to instruct and explain the workings, to the minutest detail, and, in addition, fixtures and needles for any of the leading machines are to be found upon his shelves. Mr. Garrison has had ten years' experience in the business and in the details of the trade stands second to none.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

The following notes were crowded out yesterday by the press of matter prepared for the New Year's number:

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ben Strang of Salem is paying a visit to her friends in Astoria.

Mrs. A. L. Maxwell returned by the Columbia from an extended trip to the east.

Miss Hattie Collier of Central school, passed the holidays with her parents in Eugene City.

Miss Ella Stannus of the Harrison street school, spent the holiday vacation with her parents at Dallas.

Miss Ella Waldron, who has been visiting friends at Reedville, returned to her home at The Dalles Saturday, the 24th.

Mr. Eugene McCornack, clerk of the state board of school land commissioners, passed the holidays in Eugene City visiting friends and relatives.

NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wills of Willsburg, celebrated their wedding by giving a splendid dinner to their friends last Sunday.

The members of the Land League of this city will give their annual new year's ball at New Market theater this evening.

Miss Alice Smith of East Portland was married to Eugene Allen at Astoria last Wednesday. They will reside in Astoria.

Miss Annie Cruikshank was married to Mr. Worth Gilbert at the residence of the bride's parents, a few miles east of Milwaukie, Christmas day. Rev. A. Gauthain officiated.

Mr. Frank Bowen and Miss Tettie Cleaver, both of Baker City, were married last Wednesday evening at that place. The bride is a granddaughter of Mr. W. S. Peters of this city.

Last Wednesday evening, Trinity Sunday School held its Christmas festival at the chapel on Fifth street, near Oak. After a short service and music, Rev. Geo. F. Plummer delivered a short address to the children. The presents were then distributed from a handsomely trimmed Christmas tree, and the school adjourned to the rectory, where cake and ice-cream were served, and a pleasant evening spent in innocent sports by the little ones.

Mr. Frank G. Abell, one of Portland's genial photographers, commenced the new year by giving his employees a dinner, at the St. George, yesterday afternoon. Mr. M. S. McClaire and wife, J. Seely and wife, Mr. Stringer and wife, Mr. Geo. Davis, and a few invited guests, with Mr. and Mrs. Abell, sat down to a table loaded with the delicacies of the season, and with mine host of the St. George, as master of ceremonies, the time passed agreeably and all left feeling that the friendship and confidences of the past year were renewed and strengthened for time to come.

A BRILLIANT WEDDING.

A special dispatch from Paris to the OREGONIAN dated December 29, says: Miss Leonora Seligman, daughter of William Seligman, the American banker, was married to-day to Dr. Wasserman, a young scientist of great promise, at the synagogue in Rue de la Victoire. The wedding ceremonies were performed by the Grand Rabbi of France, Isadore, and Sadok Cahn, grand rabbi of Paris. Witnesses for the bride were Minister Morton and Ferdinand de Lesseps; for bridegroom, M. Wurtz, senator and president of the French Academy of Medicine, and M. Grimaud, professor in the Ecole Polytechnique. The bridesmaids were unmarried ladies in two families. The temple was crowded with members of the American colony and haute Francaise. A magnificent ball was given at Seligman's house in honor of signing the wedding contract.

NOTES FROM THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

SPOKANE FALLS, Dec. 25, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

At the crossing of Snake river a very large high-decked steam ferryboat awaited the train. Passengers and their baggage were transported across the river in double quick, and in half an hour were all on board the coach cars of the N. P. R. R. Co. bound for Pen d'Oreille lake, 228 miles, at which place the trains stop at present, and turn back again south. A long line of freight cars were attached, carrying out hay, railroad iron, and general supplies to the front. A strong force is at work there upon the extension of the road. For six weeks the weather up here has been favorable for out door work.

Ritzville is quite a business town, with a good eating house. Here we halted twenty minutes for dinner. Passing Harrison station, we came to Sprague, twenty-four miles further on. Here is quite a business town lately built up. Signs of timber lands are seen around; many small, clear lakes of water form. A very large depot and warehouse are now in construction here, and good hotels, stores, dwellings and shops. All around here is a large farming and grass country. The country is fast settling up, and good prairie lands with some small pines upon them are vacant for homestead settlers here. Passing Stevens, a small station on the road twenty-five miles on, we arrived at Cheney, which is quite a large business town. There is a splendid farming and grass country with a tolerable supply of pine timber around this town. Hundreds of farmers can take up good quarter section homes in this large district.

Passing Marshall and Hangman, two small stations, arrived at Spokane Falls, 161 miles from Wallula Junction. This entire route is nearly level and is as good a country through which to construct a railroad as any other on this coast. For about 50 miles from Ainsworth, the road runs up the bed of what seems to be a dry river. The further we came north the richer and blacker the soil appeared to be. A light snow covers the earth for 30 miles south of Spokane Falls. The bunch grass peeps out from it and stock seem to be doing well.

Before going further I will state, that but for the railroads piercing this vastly large, superior grain and grass country—up the Columbia and Snake rivers and their tributaries—these districts would no doubt have continued almost unknown and unoccupied by white people for perhaps a half a century to come. These large districts and also Montana and Dakota, are now opened up by the great capital and enterprise of the two enterprising railroad companies with their wealth to accomplish their purposes, and hundreds of thousands of industrious, good citizens of the states and of Europe will make to themselves good homes along and near those roads. But for the N. P. R. R., on the Pen d' Oreille division, not perhaps three of these flourishing new towns north of Wallula Junction would now appear. Along this road and in Spokane Falls City, I neither see nor hear anything of those persons who are so much afraid of the monster "monopoly," which, like an incubus, is hovering over the anti-monopoly leagues in many parts of western Oregon and somewhat so in southern Oregon.

As soon as Merry Christmas is ended here I will take a general ramble over the city and pen down what I shall hear and see here in this romantic country.

THE MISSISSIPPI JETTIES.

PORTLAND, Jan. 1, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Some time in October, at a meeting of the members of the board of trade, Lieutenant-Commander Gorringe made a speech in which he made the statement that the jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi were a failure; that the water was shoaling at their ends. This statement somewhat surprised me, so I wrote to J. S. Walsh, Esq., president of the jetty company, asking him for information:

First—What the depth of water was before the jetties were built, and what has been the greatest depth and what it is now?

Second—Has any bar formed above or below the jetties since being put in, so as to interfere with the ingress or egress of vessels?

Third—What was the export of wheat and corn before their construction, and how much now?

I enclose you Mr. Welch's letter; also one from Estelle McHenry, secretary for Captain Eads, covering the third question asked; and the following printed slip, extracted from a report made by a committee to the St. Louis Exchange:

The maximum channel required by law to be secured and maintained by Mr. Eads is, in the words of the law, a channel through the jetties twenty-six feet in depth, not less than two hundred feet in width at the bottom, and having through it a central depth of thirty feet, without regard to width. The proofs that this channel has existed for the last two years, and does now exist, are numerous. Among them may be noticed the following, viz.

First—Within the past 18 months, the largest vessels that have visited New Orleans, some of them drawing 23.24 and even 25 feet of water, have passed through the jetties without the slightest detention. In confirmation of which we refer you to the following letter of Richard Francis, agent Bar Pilot Association, to Capt. Leathers:

CAPT. FRANCIS' REPLY TO CAPT. LEATHERS.

In response to Capt. Leathers' question propounded in the states on the 11th inst., "if within five years they (Capt. Benson and myself, or any other bar pilot) have carried a ship through the jetties drawing 25 or 24 feet amidships?" I respectfully reply by furnishing the following names of the only ships that have passed through the jetties drawing twenty-four feet and over. The list is taken from the books of the pilots' association. As regards to the draft "amidships," I will remark that no seagoing vessel is marked, except on her stem and stern post:

Oct. 31, 1878, steamer City of Bristol, 24.7.
Dec. 20, 1879, steamer Montreal, 24.
Oct. 1, 1880, steamer Storm Queen 24.6.
Nov. 9, 1880, steamer Teutonia, 24.
Nov. 16, 1880, steamer Montreal, 24.
Jan. 12, 1881, steamer European, 24.4.
Feb. 4, 1881, steamer Teutonia, 25.
Feb. 4, 1881, steamer Montreal, 24.
Feb. 17, 1881, steamer Persia, 24.

RICHARD FRANCIS,
Agent Bar Pilot Association.

As the people of Oregon are deeply interested in this subject I would respectfully ask you to publish the enclosed to correct the erroneous statement made and oblige,

M.

PRESIDENT WALSH'S LETTER.

ST. LOUIS Nov. 22, 1881.

Dear Sir: Your favor of the 15th ult. was received on the eve of my departure to New York, which explains the cause of my delay in answering.

All stories about the failure of the jetty system as applied and in operation at the mouth of the Mississippi are utterly without foundation and are the fabric of designing men and jealous members of the engineering profession. Every government survey shows a material deepening of the gulf immediately beyond the jetty line, and there has never been the slightest indication of the formation of a bar or shoal in any portion of the gulf that might be remotely influenced by the waters of the Mississippi.

In reply to your questions I beg to enclose the report of the merchants' exchange committee of St. Louis, who were specially appointed to investigate the real condition of affairs past and present, and to report to that body the result of their scrutiny and observation. The individual worth of the committee is of the highest order, and they command in the community the respect, esteem and confidence of all classes, and their report is worthy of belief unreservedly.

I also enclose you the certificate of Mr. McHenry, Mr. Eads' secretary, to confirm the committee report by the latest government survey, also to answer your questions as to the greatest depth on the South Pass bar when the work began. From his certificate you will also perceive the difference in the grain trade between the years of 1875 and 1881, over 19,000,000 bushels. Should you desire more definite information I can forward you authenticated copies of committee reports and grain reports after January 1, 1882.

Yours very truly,
JULIUS G. WALSH.

MR. MCHENRY'S STATEMENT.

The importation of grain to New Orleans in 1875, when the southwest pass was used was about 900,000 bushels. In the season of 1881, it is considerably over 20,000,000 bushels. The south pass before the construction of the jetties was about 8½ feet in the shoalest part. It has now 30 feet central depth according to the certificate of the government engineer forwarded to Washington and dated 13th of November, 1881.

ESTELL MCHENRY,
Secretary James B. Eads.

A "Protective" Tariff.

[From the Astorian.]

When the purpose of a tariff is simply protection, and not revenue, it assumes the form of bounty on which the consumer is taxed for the benefit of the producer or manufacturer. And as there are more consumers than manufacturers or producers, it is a tax on the many for the benefit of the few. He thinks the benefits of free trade are fully illustrated by our internal policy, under which all trade between the states is unrestricted, and believes there is no wiser provision in the federal constitution than the one that secures this condition of things. As no state can levy any impost duties or place any restriction upon interstate commerce, we have among the several states of the union unrestricted free trade.

The gospel ship, Glad Tidings is fast nearing completion at Seattle. The pilot house and upper deck are now being placed. It will require but a few weeks after the arrival of her machinery, to have her in running trim.

The body of Miss Dora West was found on the 22d ult. about five miles below where she was drowned. Her remains were taken to Centerville, and from thence by hand car to Chehalis. Parties are still searching for the bodies of Thomas Phelps and Mr. Dobson's baby, drowned at the same time.

Mr. Hanson, managing owner of the Tacoma mill, has ordered the cutting capacity increased largely. The master mechanic has made the plans for a new mill, two stories high, and more than twice as wide as the old structure, to be built directly over the old mill—which is to be torn away on the completion of the new one. The building will be 76 feet wide and 320 feet long. To the present machinery will be added a 52-inch Stearns gang; a double circular; a new re-saw; a gang edger, etc. The re-saw is now being built at the Washington iron works in Seattle. The work has all been laid out, and mechanics will commence on the new building at once and push it ahead as rapidly as possible. The mill now employs a large force of men, and cuts on an average about 100,000 feet of lumber per day, and to double this capacity will require an immense power and much additional machinery.

Gentle Women

Who want glossy, luxuriant and wavy tresses of abundant, beautiful Hair must use LYON'S KATHAIRON. This elegant, cheap article always makes the Hair grow freely and fast, keeps it from falling out, arrests and cures grayness, removes dandruff and itching, makes the Hair strong, giving it a curling tendency and keeping it in any desired position. MONDAY MORNING, JAN. 2, 1882.

WELBECK ABBEY.

Glimpses at the Country Seat of the Duke of Portland.

THE HOME OF THE BENTINCKS.

Story of an Aristocratic Architect and his Great Work to which he Devoted years of time and Millions of Money.

In an article on "The Wonders of Welbeck," the Sheffield Telegraph says that Welbeck Abbey will always be famed for its underground passages, which extend for miles, and for its subterranean apartments, including a spacious ball-room and suites of rooms in the bosom of the earth. "The most striking feature in the buildings above ground is the large Gothic hall, restored in 1871 by the Countess of Oxford; and the visitor cannot fail to be delighted with the fan-like tracery of the ceiling, the elaborate designs, and the splendid decorations. In the early part of his career the late duke devoted himself ardently to the cultivation of art, and the hundreds of paintings which adorn the walls of the abbey testify to the good taste he must have possessed. In the great dining-room there are evidences of his ingenious contrivances for minimizing labor. An hydraulic shaft was constructed between the great dining-room and the kitchen, and by means of this shaft wagons could be raised from or lowered to the underground passages. Rails were laid in the passage along which the wagons ran to and from a cupboard, which was also a stove, where food could be kept hot until required to be hoisted to the dining-room. Extending in all directions from the abbey are those lofty and spacious passages which have been for so long the wonder and admiration of the privileged visitor. They are brilliantly lighted by means of costly apparatus for attracting the sunlight, and where sunlight cannot be admitted, by gaslight. The celebrated 'riding school,' the like of which is not to be found in the world, is reached through one or two underground passages. Entrance is gained by a trap-door, which is opened by a curiously designed crank in the passage. The building was used for the purposes of a riding school in the Duke of Newcastle's time, but has since been converted into a magnificent museum of art 180 feet in length. Large numbers of pictures are arranged in the gallery, and on the oak floors are thousands of rare and beautiful books, ancient and modern. The gallery is lighted by means of four chandeliers, each weighing a ton, suspended from the roof. There are upwards of 2000 gas jets, and when all are illuminated the effect must be brilliant in the extreme. Mirrors adorn the walls, and the ceiling of the gallery is beautifully decorated with a design representing a midsummer sky. The library as well as the picture gallery is under ground, and is the result of many years' labor. It is 236 feet in length, and divided into five chambers, which are so constructed as to form when desirable one very large chamber or hall. Another immense and superbly constructed apartment was commenced seven years ago, but was not completed before the late duke's death. It is reached by a spiral staircase at one end and by a subterranean passage at the other end. It was supposed at one time that it was intended for a church, but there is nothing ecclesiastical about its appearance. It looks more like a ballroom, and what a magnificent ballroom it would make! Its oaken floor is a wonderful piece of work, so close and fine is it. The deep tone of the wood has been obtained by regular washing with rare old Welbeck ale. The roof is supported by eight iron girders, each of which weighs 24 tons. By day illumination is obtained by twenty-seven octagonal lights, and by night from magnificent crystal chandeliers, each weighing a ton. The room, which covers a rood of ground, has been dug out of the solid clay. It is now used as a picture gallery, and on the walls are 160 grand works by Snyders, Raffaelle, Vandyck, Rembrandt, Rubens, Holbein, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Wouvermans, and others. There are many other underground chambers, and all of them have been excavated at great cost. They are magnificently decorated, admirably lighted and are free from draughts. Altogether there are many miles of subterranean passages, all of which are pleasant to walk in and wide enough to allow of three persons walking abreast. One of the long passages was exclusively used by the late duke himself, and the stranger found in it was deemed guilty of a grave offense. Another extraordinary work was commenced by the late duke, and remains unfinished. He spoke of it as 'the bachelor's hall.' It occupies an acre of ground, and is reached by a stone staircase. The enclosure is all walled in with Roman cement mixed with sand. On these walls and excavations £50,000 has already been spent. The place would make a splendid winter garden, but it is not yet known what the present duke will do with it.

"During the late duke's lifetime Welbeck was like an industrial village, about 2000 workmen usually being employed upon the 'works.' Wood yards, machine shops, manufactories and gasworks were to be found within the grounds. It was acknowledged that the duke had refined taste and skill in architecture, and he was ever a builder of good work and a puller down of bad. There are many stories told of his impatience of anything ugly and of his tenderness towards those responsible for it. An architect at one time employed by him built a gateway which, when completed, became abhorrent to his grace, yet so considerate was he that he would not remonstrate. He took another course. One evening after the architect had driven off, he set all his own men to work at double the ordinary rate of wages, and by sunrise not a vestige of the hated edifice remained. On arriving in the course of the morning the architect looked in vain for the gateway, but neither he nor the duke ever took the slightest notice of its disappearance. Short work was also made of a bridge erected to the memory of Lord George Bentinck, near the spot where he breathed his last, and opposite the village of Norton; and in a similar manner numerous odds and ends of architecture which were odious in the duke's eyes were demolished. It was under the duke's supervision that the half-hundred lodges scattered over the Welbeck estates for the keepers and other servants were erected; and even with regard to them he carried out his passion for subterranean work, the kitchens, pantries and other offices all being under ground. The dining-rooms and bed chambers, however, form the upper portion of the house, which in each instance is built solidly of stone.

"Of the many striking buildings outside the abbey the most remarkable is the new riding school, nearly 400 feet in length, 100 feet in width, and divided into a great centre and two aisles. The central department is decorated with a frieze or painted brass work representing animals, birds, and the foliage of trees, and is elegant in design and perfect in workmanship. The building, with its walls of solid stone, and roof 500 feet in height, formed of iron, glass and wood, is chaste in design, as well as gigantic in its proportions. The interior is lighted by 8000 gas jets. In this magnificent riding school the late duke took pleasure in seeing his horses exercised. The Bentincks were always known as lovers of the horse, and in this, as in other respects, the late duke supported the family traditions. When a young man he was famous as a rider. The Portland handicap was due to the Bentincks, and Lord George created great excitement by competing for the Blue Riband of the Turf under the name of 'Mr. Bowe.' The tan-gallop, for exercising the horses in winter, is unequalled in Europe. It is a glass-covered arcade, 1270 feet long, and containing upwards of 64,000 feet. The Welbeck stables, poultry-houses, sheds etc., are as large as a village, and everything is on the grandest scale, the very fittings of the doors being of polished brass.

"The hunting stables, which are in the form of a quadrangle, stand in a square acre of ground. There is accommodation here for about 100 horses, and nearly all the stalls and boxes we pass are occupied with handsome creatures, most handsomely 'housed.' The stalls are remarkably roomy, and equipped with every comfort that can be thought of for the occupants. The name of each horse is inserted in gilt letters on the wall over its head. The late duke was very fond of his horses, many of which used to feed from his hands. The present duke inherits the Bentinck characteristics in that respect. At the Doncaster races, last September, his splendid mare, Mowerina, was the winner of the Portland plate, and another good race fell to the representative of the Portland stables. The Duke of Portland is a sportsman of the Lord Falmouth type—as plucky as he is upright, who cares nothing for the excitement of betting, though those who do may depend upon it that whatever he runs will be run to win. A glance at the coach-house reveals vehicles of every description—from the landau to the state carriage. Though they were rarely used in the days of the old duke, they were always kept as bright as a mirror. Nothing went wrong for want of attention. A curious old conveyance is the late duke's favorite carriage. It is a kind of waggonette, completely covered with a thick curtain arranged in cube form with flat top. Through 'eye-holes' cut in the curtain, and containing oval glasses, the duke, if he pleased, could see what was going on about him without being observed in return. In the harness room, where there is a remarkable collection of all kinds, everything is hung in glass cases, and is always kept ready for use. Every carriage and every set of harness could be taken out and used at a moment's notice, as [illegible] in the lifetime of their owner, who, though he delighted more in working out his plans of building and improving than in driving about his domains, took care that all his equipages and trappings should be available when he pleased to require them.

"The cow-houses, dairy and poultry-houses form imposing blocks of buildings. The cow-house has stalls of galvanized zinc and slate—there being separate troughs for the hay and the turnips or other food. It is very lofty, with a roof of pitch pine, and the cattle have as much room as the horses in the hunting stables. A second cow-house, of similar proportions, is used for housing the animals while the other is being cleansed. Here, too, deserves to be noticed a cowshed with a roof of pitch pine, and fitted with revolving iron shutters, enabling the place to be closed or opened according to the weather. The Alderneys 'housed' at Welbeck have a home worthy of their rank; and they look, in their placid faces and silken coats, as if they were quite conscious of being the objects of special care in these most comfortable of quarters. A handsome Essex bull, ranging at will in a large and lofty stall, is shown as the color to which the present duke is anxious to bring his herd of cattle. The Essex bull is a beauty—with a head gracefully poised, a bright eye, grandly proportioned, and carrying a dark iron-gray coat, deepening in shade towards the flanks, which would show splendidly against the green turf and foliage so abundant in the grounds and woodlands of Welbeck. It is impossible to leave all these stables and cowsheds and outhouses without observing how careful their owner must have been to have everything as good and perfect as it could be. Welbeck is a place where even Ruskin would find it hard to lay his finger on unworthy work. The very doors by which all these outhouses are entered are massive and beautifully grained, and all are fitted with brass handles kept in a perfect state of polish.

"The dairy is a model of a place of the kind. It is a neat building of stone. The floor is laid with encaustic tiles, which are also used in lining the walls. From the center of the tiled floor springs a crystal fountain, set in a marble basin. Around the base gold and other fish are disporting themselves at pleasure. The milk dishes, which are of china, and cost some two guineas each, are placed on benches of marble; and jars for the cream, which are also of china, are placed higher up in niches let into the walls. All the dishes are full to the lip with milk which looks like cream, and there is not a speck to be seen anywhere about the place. The very sight of the dairy is grateful to the eye—everything is so bright and cool and clean, from the Minton tiles beneath our feet to the massive crystal chandelier over our heads.

"At Welbeck the late duke also took great pride in the gardens, absorbing whole farms in his desire to plant fruit trees. He was what the world calls eccentric. He neither visited, nor encouraged visitors. Hating all ceremony, it was said the penalty of dismissal followed upon a workman lifting his hat or specially noticing him as he passed. A man who wanted work could always obtain it at Welbeck, but his grace held idlers in contempt, and if he found a man dawdling over his task he was instantly discharged. According to the current talk about his income he had coming in 'a thousand pounds a day and two for Sunday.' A published estimate computes his rent roll at something like £400,000 per annum. In addition to the Welbeck estate, he had landed property in Middlesex, Norfolk, Derbyshire, Lincolnshire, Nottinghamshire, Northumberland, Ayrshire, and Caithness-shire. The ground rents of the valuable property in the metropolis, consisting of houses in Great Titchfield street, Great Portland street, and Portland place, helped to swell his princely revenues. In the county of Nottingham the lands extended to 35,209 acres, with a gross estimated rental of £50,555; in Northumberland, 10,822 acres, realizing a rental of £8,462; in Derbyshire, 7740 acres, realizing £9917; in Lincolnshire, 894 acres, realizing £1258; and in Norfolk, 591 acres, realizing £986. The Scotch estates are also very extensive, the acreage in the county of Caithness alone amounting to 81,609. There are four seats—namely, Welbeck Abbey; Fullarton house, Ayrshire; Langwell, Golspie, Caithness; and Bothal Castle, Northumberland, besides the London mansion. For 26 years the duke of Portland lived the life of a recluse—at least, from those of his own order. He had for his companions the men who were carrying out his remarkable works. He used to dine alone, no one approaching him except his valet. There were drawn for himself every day two quarts of beer and two of ale, but he never drank them. On the 1st of Sept., 1878, he left Welbeck for London. He drove to Worksop in his own carriage, which was put on a truck at the railway station, and in that style he was conveyed to London where he died on the 6th of December, 1879. This was his usual way of traveling, and the porters at Welbeck station who assisted in putting his carriage in order always received a gratuity of a sovereign each. All the stories which have been told of the late duke having physical reasons for secluding himself and receiving no company at his princely home are purely imaginary. He is represented by those who had constantly to do with him as being a remarkably fine man, with a singularly clear complexion. He walked erect as a soldier, with a swinging stride, and was in every way a noble specimen of his order. Of his kindness to all around him there are many interesting instances. Deserving domestics when they were ill were the object of his special solicitude. Frequently they were sent to Matlock, Buxton, or the Isle of Man, and kept there for prolonged periods at his expense. His unusual manner of life was solely caused by an over mastering desire to carry into practical effect his great constructive skill. In this he may have been 'eccentric,' but it was eccentricity of an order which proved the possession of a mind of singular power, great self-denial, and the concentration of his energies on one object, to the exclusion of all the temptations peculiar to his rank and riches. At the same time his undertakings were the source of blessings for miles around. He found employment for thousands of hands, and the works at Welbeck remain a great monument to his memory."

JERSEY CATTLE.

There is a growing interest in Jersey cattle in Oregon as well as the eastern states. The following article by Richard Goodman, in the Journal of the American Association, will be generally read:

The Jersey is the most profitable butter producer. She makes more butter than any other cow; this butter is of a better quality than that produced by any other cow; she is as long-lived as the cow of any other breed and she comes into profit earlier; she is as economical to feed, as easy to "handle," and more easy to make butter from; giving more butter in her milk in proportion to the other elements, making, in particular, a great saving in the amount of water to be milked from the bag, to be carried to the milk room, and to be provided with pan-surface. This is no unimportant characteristic, from a practical point of view. No small amount of time, labor, and material is thus saved in the course of a year. The Jersey not only gives richer milk, but in her milk the "globule" is larger than in the milk of other breeds. In consequence of this larger globule, the cream rises quicker and, hence is exposed a shorter time to injury from fermentation, from odors, and from dust and insects. The larger globule, with its thinner envelope, churns more quickly and more satisfactorily, and is better adapted to all varieties of churns.

The Jerseys are a thoroughbred and well-established race. They possess as fully as any breed the power of transmitting their desirable qualities to their offspring. They are thoroughly responsive to in-and-in breeding, when intelligently carried on for the purpose of intensifying and perpetuating their peculiar powers as butter-producers. The leading Jersey cows in America to-day show in their pedigree much close breeding among their ancestors, and they are better than any of their ancestors.

Having smaller bodies than any of the other leading breeds, they require less food to build up and develop these bodies while they are growing, and they require less food for the repairs of their bodies when they have reached their full size.

They come into profit at least a year earlier than other breeds, and thus make a saving to their owners of a year's food, handling, and housing. This is no small item, considering the labor, the expense, and the risk attending the younger years of valuable stock.

They have shown a power unequalled by any other breed of adapting themselves to the various climates and to the varieties of foods of all parts of the United States.

No cattle in this country are more quiet, gentle, hardy, prolific or long-lived.

They are the most persistent milkers of any breed. They seldom go dry for more than six weeks. Many instances are on record of cows giving half a dozen calves in as many years, without even ceasing to give a good yield of milk.

They make more butter from a given amount of feed than the cows of any other breed. Two pounds and a quarter of butter a day is not an uncommon yield for a cow in the winter, receiving a dozen pounds of dry hay and two pounds of corn meal mixed with two pounds of wheat shorts.

They will make more butter in twelve running months than will the cows of any other breed. Several cows in this country made in 1880 over seven hundred pounds of butter, two of them nearly eight hundred pounds, and none of these cows are believed to have yet reached the full limit of their powers. Records for herds of three hundred, three hundred and fifty and four hundred pounds are to be found in many states.

Their butter has a higher color in winter, as well as in summer, than that of any other breed except the Guernsey.

The milk, the cream and the butter of the Jersey has a richer taste and a more lively and agreeable flavor at all times of the year than that of any other breed.

The butter of this breed, in texture and grain, has no equal. Its firmness, its freedom from a salvy character in the heats of summer is particularly noticeable.

There is no breed which has been crossed upon the common stock of the United States with more immediate or more satisfactory results. It is an important fact in cross-breeding, that the most favorable results are obtained where the bull belongs to a race whose bodies are smaller than are those of the race to which the cow is allied, and the same is true where the male represents a race older and better established than that to which the female belongs. Both of these favorable conditions exist in the case of the Jerseys and of our common stock.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—As usual at the close of the year, markets are devoid of animation and with few exceptions there are very few changes to note. However holders of merchandise are very sanguine, and prices are firmly held in most instances.

Wheat is less active, in fact there is no market to-day, the afternoon being given up to a jubilee by members of the exchange. Speculation in grain has been fairly active, with shorts and longs alike showing a disposition to even up as the end of the year is at hand. The advance in grain which has been going on has been to most of the operators a surprise. The theory was generally entertained that there would be a dull, draggy market in anticipation of the holidays, and a good deal of wheat was put out a week or ten days ago in expectation of a little lower prices, but an unexpected upward turn in foreign markets and commonly predicted revival of business with the incoming of the new year found a good many dealers afraid of being left. It was mainly on these inferences that the improvement took place, shorts helping the advance by their attempts to cover. To-day the market has closed quiet.

Provisions of all kinds are inanimate and prices nominal.

Rio coffee is in very fair demand and prices held firmly.

Refined sugars sold to a fair extent at full prices.

Teas were in very light demand, but holders maintain a show of firmness.

In foreign fruits there is jobbing demand only, and prices are weak.

Hops sell slow with most business within range of 22@25c.

Borax is in fair demand for the season, and firm at the recent advance.

Quicksilver is very dull, 42c being asked, but no concessions could be made.

Hides are quiet; some large sales of Montevideos have been made at a decline of half a cent; stocks are nearly 600,000, of which nearly 300,000 are from Rio de la Plata.

Leather is in moderate demand and prices steady.

Turpentine is quiet but firm.

Rosin is in moderate demand, but held firm, the supply of strained being light and chiefly controlled by one house.

Petroleum is unchanged.

Crude sperm and whale oils are firmly held; sales of 1000 bbls sperm were made at New Bedford for export at private terms.

Pig iron remains the same as noted heretofore, but there is a strong undertone; although prices are no higher; it is stated that 20,000 tons have been taken up for 1882 at $26 for No. 1.

Pig lead is in moderate demand and prices easier.

Hardware is dull in all departments, but values are sustained.

Nails are in fair demand and prices easier.

Wool is moderately active at generally steady prices; California is plentiful enough, but buyers are indisposed to handle large quantities of such, as the goods making at present require wool of superior grade; sales of California were 115,000 lbs spring at 26@33½c, 350,000 lbs fall at 15½@25c, bags of scoured fall burry at 35½c.

THE EASTERN FREIGHT SITUATION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—As usual at the close of the year, California trade, in common with all others, is rather quiet, although they state a very fair amount of business is doing and ships will be kept busy during the next thirty days, by which time the market will have been pretty well cleared of all goods intended for the late spring trade. Both the Rence and Eliza McNeil will go over into next year's account.

The supply of tonnage does not increase yet, neither are lines anxious except for such vessels as they have already chartered to arrive.

Steamer freights are quiet and the departure of to-day had but light freight for San Francisco.

Freights at Philadelphia and Boston are rather quiet. At the former port there are no vessels in berth. At Boston the Oakland has finished and Portland Lloyd's is in berth doing fairly. It is rumored that there will be no renewal of the contract between the Pacific Mail and the railroads and that each will enter the market for such freight as they can secure. It is said that the Pacific roads, however, have purchased the China line and will run them in connection with the railroad. It is also stated that the Union Pacific road has failed to make any arrangement with the Texas Pacific road and that the latter will compete for freight both east and west bound. The freight war between trunk lines in Chicago is assuming very formidable proportions and there is no telling when it will end. It is stated that all lines are making contracts good for six months, with a prospective clause guaranteeing shippers the benefit of lowest rates. It is reported on good authority that the annual settlement of the Union Pacific company will show earnings from local business to have been 90 per cent. of the whole, and earnings from through business 10 per cent. of the whole of dividends paid. Branch roads have earned two per cent. and main lines five per cent. The express business has netted a profit of $800,000.

Liverpool Breadstuffs Market.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 31.—Breadstuffs quiet and steady, except corn, which is firmer at 6s 10½d@6s 11d per cental for new mixed western.

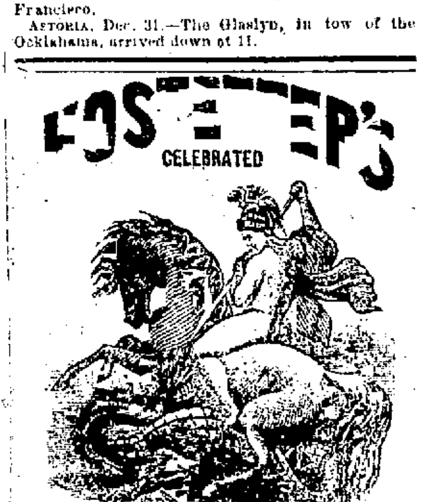
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED



STOMACH BITTERS

IN HOSTS OF FAMILIES

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is as much regarded as a household necessity as sugar or coffee. The reason of this is that years of experience have proved it to be permanently reliable in those cases of emergency where a prompt and convenient remedy is demanded. Constipation, liver complaint, dyspepsia, indigestion and other troubles are overcome by it.

For sale by Druggists and Dealers, to whom apply for Hostetter's Almanac for 1882.

TO THE PUBLIC.

HAVING TRANSFERRED MY AGENCY OF the NEW HOME and CROWN SEWING MACHINES to Mr. John B. Garrison, 167 Third Street, Portland, Oregon, I take this method to inform my patrons and the public where these excellent machines may be found hereafter.

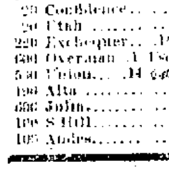
HUB PUNCH

TO TOP OFF A DINNER,
May be Drank Clear, as a Cordial.



For a dinner thoroughly appointed, the good old way was to wash down the last triumphs of the feast with copious libations of rich, rare and curious old Port and Golden Sherry; but "HUB PUNCH" has added a new sensation to the epicure. Its delicacy, aroma, flavor, and delicious, but gentle effects, proclaim it the nectar fit for the gods banqueting on Olympus.

Mix HUB PUNCH with Ice Water, Cold Tea, Lemonade, or Soda. It is unanimously pronounced unrivalled.

TESTIMONIALS.

"A sip is like nectar."—Boston Courier.

"Delicious beyond description."—Boston Transcript.

"Added to the good things of the table it enlarges the pleasures of life and encourages good fellowship and good nature if rightly enjoyed."—Springfield Republican.

"Invaluable for a little treat when a friend drops in." New York Evening Post.

"It is a great trouble to make Punch, and many people lack the savoir faire to brew it. Hub Punch is indispensable wherever known."—Spirit of the Times, N. Y.

"The increasing popularity of Hub Punch is pleasant testimony to your success in using the best and purest components." PARK & TILFORD, New York.

"Our success in selling Hub Punch has surprised us, we having sold within the past three months a larger quantity than we anticipated selling in twelve." SMITH & VANDERBEEK, New York and Chicago.

King of the Blood

is not a "cure-all;" it is a blood-purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c., &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, Impurity of the Blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists. $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.
